Biographical/Historical Note

Henry Frawley was born into a large family in New York on March 13, 1851. He graduated with a law degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1876. A year later, he joined a wagon train headed for Deadwood, arriving in town and setting up his law office in July of 1877. Frawley worked on his own for two years but formed a partnership with Edward L. Kohen in 1879. The law firm existed until 1881 when Kohen left South Dakota. After practicing on his own for another few years, Frawley partnered with John P. Laffey to create the firm of Frawley and Laffey. Frawley also practiced law with two of his brothers throughout his lifetime. The partnerships never lasted long as the brothers moved on to new opportunities quickly. As a lawyer in Deadwood, Frawley represented a number of high profile clients in civil and criminal cases and was counsel for Burlington Missouri Railroad, American National Bank, and Golden Reward Mining Co.

In 1890 Henry married Christina Anderson, the daughter of James and Catherine Anderson. The Anderson family operated a dairy located between Spearfish and Deadwood as well as the Anderson ranch. After his wedding, Henry purchased ranch land near his in-laws and continued to acquire surrounding lots over the next two decades. Both Henry and his wife managed the land which expanded to nearly 5,000 acres and included the land of the Centennial Valley schoolhouse and cemetery. Their partnership meant that both Henry and Christina signed right-of-way agreements, leased land, and oversaw ranch hands. Christina and Henry had three children: Honorah, Henry James, and William. All three children eventually were sent out of state to complete their education with Henry James and William attending Notre Dame University.

Christina's mother was a well-known and successful business woman in her own right and Henry and Christina often helped her with legal paperwork. Catherine Anderson married twice after the death of her first husband, first to Enos Lane and then to George Perry. From these marriages, Catherine acquired both land and businesses. She used the name Catherine Lane Perry from 1908 onwards. Christina acted as her mother's attorney-in-fact after 1918 and handled nearly all paperwork dealing with land and financial issues for her mother. Catherine Lane Perry died in 1920.

Beyond his law practice and successful ranching ventures, Henry Frawley became involved in mining. In 1905 stockholders of the Hidden Fortune Gold Mining Company elected Frawley to a director position. Unfortunately, the company was already struggling. In 1904 stockholders had been advised that the company would be unable to pay its debts and that mill and mine performance was declining. Frawley, as well as a number of other directors, used personal funds to help the company. A lawsuit brought against the company in 1906 and a foreclosure by bondholders forced stockholders to transfer the Hidden Fortune properties to the Columbus Consolidated Company, the transfer was completed in 1907. Henry continued his directorial position with the Columbus Consolidated Company but the financial strain from the Hidden Fortune closure forced him to borrow from family, friends, and business associates.

By 1920 family issues as well as financial losses led Frawley to travel to Nebraska seeking treatment for exhaustion. He remained there until his death in 1927. Henry Frawley was declared incompetent by the courts of Lawrence County, South Dakota in 1925, Christina Frawley was granted guardianship of the estate. She managed the Frawley Ranch until her death in 1942. The property was declared a National Historic Landmark in 1977.

Scope and Contents Note

This collection contains records dating from 1877 through 1933 and pertains to the Frawley Family, their landholdings, business activities, and involvement in mining. The collection includes correspondence, case files, administrative records, financial records and court dockets. The collection has been arranged into four series: Frawley Family, Law Office Records, Ledgers, and Mining Matters.

Series 1: Frawley Family consists of those documents pertaining to or created by the members of the Frawley family including Christina Frawley's mother, Catherine Lane Perry, and her husbands. Materials related to ranch matters such as employment of ranch hands, purchase and care of livestock, hay sales and the financials costs involved are in this series as well as insurance, tax, and other financial records of the family. The bulk of correspondence found in this series is from Honorah Frawley to her mother, Christina. Also found in this series are records of court cases taken by or against Henry Frawley, Christina Frawley, and Catherine Lane Perry. A small amount of ephemera collected by Christina Frawley is also found in this series.

Series 2: Law Office Records is the largest series of the collection with the bulk being files for the numerous and varied cases for which Henry Frawley acted as attorney. The majority of the files are from Frawley & Laffey but a small number of records are from Frawley & Kohen and Frawley & Frawley. Also found in this series are correspondence, financial records, records of collections made by Frawley & Laffey for other law firms, calendars, inventories of the office and law library, and miscellaneous briefs and notes.

Series 3: Ledgers consists of bound volumes that were in Henry Frawley's possession. The bulk of the ledgers were used to record daily activities and client account information but also included are journals of ranch expenses and the account ledgers for mining companies and Deadwood businesses.

Series 4: Mining Matters contains the records and correspondence retained by Henry Frawley from the Hidden Fortune Mining Company and the Columbus Consolidated Company as well as any lawsuits connected to these companies. There are records from smaller mining companies and abstracts of lodes not connected to specific cases handled by Frawley's law firms.

Arrangement Note

The collection has been arranged into four series. Documents that were originally in envelopes labeled by Henry Frawley have been foldered together and retain their original label. Oversize materials from all series are arranged together and described by separation notes within the series. Records in very poor condition were photocopied and the originals discarded.

Frawley Family: documents are arranged by type. Catherine Lane Perry's papers are arranged chronologically. The papers of John Anderson, Enos Lane, and George Perry are arranged with Catherine Lane Perry's papers. See box list for more information.

Law Office Records: Cases brought by or against federal and state governments (United States, Dakota Territory, South Dakota, Montana, North Dakota, Wyoming) have been arranged by government and thereunder chronologically. Cases involving railroad companies have been arranged alphabetically by company and thereunder chronologically. All other cases and client files are arranged alphabetically by plaintiff's last name, if a private individual, or by the first letter of the plaintiff's business. Two exceptions are the Estate of J.H. Skelly and the Estate of Nora Skelton; all cases involving these estates have been arranged together. Items such as agreements, deeds and patents, as well as correspondence and financial records for the law office, are arranged by type. Briefs and case notes that cannot be identified as belonging to a specific file have been foldered together. See box list for more information.

Ledgers: The ledgers have been arranged numerically utilizing a numbering system assigned by an appraiser before donation. Several volumes have been separated due to fragility. See box list for more information.

Mining Matters: Records regarding Hidden Fortune Mining Company and the Columbus Consolidated Company are arranged together by type. Documents pertaining to other mining companies and lode abstracts are arranged alphabetically. See box list for more information.
